

The Sydney Eye Hospital Medical Retinal Fellowship offers extensive experience in the management of retinal diseases including diabetic eye disease, vascular eye diseases, age related macular degeneration and inherited retinal dystrophies. The clinical sessions are undertaken in clinics organised by the Medical Retinal and Uveitis Service.

The Medical Retinal Fellowship will commence on 1 July for a period of 12-months.

Applicants need to have passed their RANZCO RACE exams (or equivalent) and be registrable with AHPRA, including current Pass in IELTS Academic Module – Score 7.0 in each of the 4 components. (Applications with scores less than 7.0 in each component will not be considered).

There are 6 medical retinal consultants: Professor Mark Gillies, A/Prof Samantha Fraser-Bell, Dr Christine Younan, Dr James Wong, Dr Robert Chong and Dr Michael Chilov. In addition the Fellow will get experience in the investigation and management of posterior uveitis due to infectious and immune diseases while working with Professor Peter McCluskey and Dr Christine Younan and in the management of genetic eye disease with A/Prof John Grigg.

The Fellow will have extensive exposure to digital angiography, OCT, laser and intravitreal injections. The research content of the post will include being a sub investigator for Retinal clinical trials. The MR Fellow will participate in Research Clinics with Prof Mark Gillies and A/Prof Samantha Fraser-Bell gaining valuable experience in both in house and international multi-centre clinical trials, for which the Save Sight Institute is renowned. The fellow is encouraged to undertake projects of their own in consultation with their consultants.

The Fellow is expected to participate actively in teaching of the registrars and residents. The Fellow is also required to present cases at the Ophthalmology Grand Rounds and teaching sessions.
